Call for Papers: 2022 Meeting of The Bertrand Russell Society

Remembering Russell 150 Years after His Birth

The Bertrand Russell Society will hold its 49th annual meeting from Friday, June 3rd to Sunday, June 5th, 2022, at McMaster University (home of the Bertrand Russell Archives and Bertrand Russell Research Centre) in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. The Bertrand Russell Society is an international non-profit scholarly organization dedicated to the life, work, and causes of the philosopher Bertrand Russell (May 18th, 1872–February 2nd, 1970).

If you are interested in presenting a paper at the BRS Annual Meeting, please submit the paper through our website, at the following link: <https://bertrandrussellsociety.org/submissions/>

Special emphasis will be given to commemorating Russell's continuing influence on the 150th anniversary of his death in 1970. But we welcome papers on any aspect of Russell's personal life and his thought, work, and legacy. We also welcome proposals for other activities that might be appropriate for the meeting (e.g., a master class on a work by Russell). The abstract should be no longer than two paragraphs. The deadline for submissions is April 2nd, 2022.

There is a time limit of 20 minutes for presentation. An additional 10 minutes are allotted for discussion. We are planning a hybrid conference, with some presentations in person on campus and others via Zoom. However, if it is not possible to host papers in person on campus due to COVID restrictions, the conference will then take place entirely online.

Further details about the annual meeting (registration, etc.) will be posted on the Bertrand Russell Society website: <https://bertrandrussellsociety.org/meetings>

Please feel free to share this call for papers widely. And we hope to see you at the meeting!
